

Author lets his fans choose next book cover

Written by

Tuesday, 20 October 2009 15:20

Vincent Taylor, the author of the popular Cornbread series, is allowing teachers, parents, and students all of the country to choose the next book cover for his upcoming November release entitled Cornbread Faces the School Bully. That's only half of the treat. He's also giving two free autographed books to the two schools in each state with the highest number of votes.

Follow these three steps:

- 1) go to www.CornbreadSeries.com
- 2) vote for either the FAR AWAY or CLOSE UP pic
- 3) list the school of your choice in the appropriate box, so that the school is eligible to win the upcoming chapter book, and
- 4) click "send" to place your vote

This marks the third book in the Cornbread series, and readers will be immensely shocked about its conclusion. Taylor promises that it has a twist that will surprise every reader. "I did not anticipate the ending. The theme of writing was cleverly threaded through the text," says Dr. Alfred Tatum, Associate Professor and Director of UIC Reading Clinic. And Arlene Uslander, a former teacher and editor, states, "This book is a gem! The humor, the family values, the character development, and the moral messages Vincent Taylor manages to subtly weave through his stories, will delight not only the young readers, but their teachers as well."

In addition to being an author, Mr. Taylor is also a teacher with 14 years of experience. He travels the country conducting educational workshops for teachers and students with a focus on Student Engagement. If anyone is interested in finding out more information about Mr. Taylor, please go to www.CornbreadSeries.com.